A yoga class at the high school founded by B.K.S. Iyengar in his home village of Bellur - From The Indian Express 07 September 2014

“The approach of a young child to yoga is very different from that of an adult. Consider the intellectual development of an adult and the intellectual development of a child, and consider the speed of a child in physical action compared with the speed of an adult.”

Well, Autumn is here. In Toronto, at least, it was a long time coming, as summer – which was very slow in getting started – stretched into September and even October.

Community outreach and community building are critical to sustaining the vibrancy of the Iyengar yoga world. We have a very interesting story from Moira Nicholson in Calgary about how she established yoga as a credit course in the Alberta high school curriculum.

Yoga as a High School Credit Course in Alberta

In 2002, as a high school science teacher and working mother in Calgary, Moira Nicholson discovered yoga. As we will see in the story below, that was just the beginning!

Soon I wondered about sharing its benefits with students, and in 2006 proposed it to my principal. Initially dismissive, two years later she told me to go ahead with the idea.

To become a credit-earning option in Alberta schools, a course must have government approval. The proposal must include detailed learning objectives, evaluation procedures, teacher qualifications, proposed budget requirements, and suggested resources; it must show progression from one level to the next. I had to work with a Board Specialist who proposed calling the course “Relaxation Techniques”. I insisted on “Yoga”.

It took me months (winter 2008-9) to write a suitable document. During this time I began a yoga teacher training program. My school took a chance on the course being approved, and proceeded to register students for the following year.

Long story short, Yoga 15-25 was approved. I taught the first section in spring 2010. Students were keen to try yoga.

The designations ‘15, 25, 35’ refer to course or program levels in the Alberta education system. Yoga 15 is earlier stage, Yoga 35, more advanced.

Interested teachers across the city and province started calling, and soon it spread to other schools and school districts. As demand grew, the document was revised and Yoga 35 was added.

The Calgary Board of Education holds copyright on the document, but other Alberta Boards can acquire it.

Some semesters, I taught 11 classes per week. My classroom was a former electronics lab, with an upper mezzanine.

I often gave students time to journal, to reflect, to answer questions I would pose. They wrote some profoundly moving answers, a few of which are included in these pages (see the coloured boxes).

“I really have trouble shutting my brain off and I get stressed out over tests. Now I just focus on my breath and calm down. I feel like I am sleeping better and more rested for the day ahead.”

Fast-forward to 2017: Dozens of Alberta high schools offering Yoga 15-25-35. Hundreds of teenagers doing yoga every day, as part of their daily timetable. Just what the world needs.

"I've struggled with depression issues since junior high.... I've noticed since we've been doing yoga every day that I have a lot more energy and even motivation. It's been almost like a free therapy session every day haha. The work we've been doing with savasana has helped a lot, and I've found that doing yoga every day has made a big difference in my ability to sleep deeper and for longer."

"My favourite part of yoga is how it is so different from practically every other activity I do, although I'm not that flexible it doesn't matter in the slightest because yoga is all about respecting personal body limits. Unlike school, sports and a lot of other activities, yoga takes out the competitiveness and I am always in calm control."

"....In the winter when I started yoga, my focus was primarily about athleticism. Now, amongst this odd feeling of spring, I find myself more and more digging into the inner, more deeper aspects. Pranayama, Pratyahara, Dharana, and Niyamas are a much larger focus for me now."

My original goal has been replaced with new ideas. Originally, I wanted to touch my toes. Now, I want to improve my breath, my focus, and my inner discipline.

Of course, the athletic aspects of yoga are still very important to me, but my practice is more balanced. Paul Chek, a very famous health practitioner calls this "working in" instead of working out. I am now determined to balance the two in my life."

Moira today: Very early on in the Alberta high school yoga program, I knew I needed better training as a teacher, and joined Margot Kitchen's Iyengar teacher training program in 2011. Cynthia Palahniuk, Sonja Evans and Sam Lopeter-Lloyd all worked with Margot to train me as an Iyengar yoga teacher. Cynthia has been my main teacher for several years now. I am certified at the Intro II level.

Since retiring from teaching high school in June 2016, I have been teaching a weekly class in a friend's basement, and since this fall, a class for Cynthia Palahniuk at Parkdale United Church in Calgary.

I'd be happy to answer any questions on the Yoga 15-25-35 program.

A LETTER FROM OUR NEW PRESIDENT

Contact Frema at:

frema@familyoga.ca

Dear Members,

I would like to introduce myself as the new board president of IYAC/ACYI. Drew Perry, board president for the last several years, has retired effective this past AGM. Drew has done a tremendous job and I know I have big shoes to fill.

I have been a member of the board for the last five years and I was approached by Drew to take on this role for my last year on the board. IYAC/ACYI bylaws prevent board members from staying on for more than two three-year terms.

My home is in Edmonton where, for the last 15 years, I have owned, operated and taught at an Iyengar yoga studio, with the help of some very fine teachers. (www.familyoga.ca). I am certified at the Intermediate Junior 3 level. I believe I have an understanding of the work involved in becoming an Iyengar Yoga teacher, the process of assessments, and the hard work that those who run studios have – as well as their contribution to the association – by providing locations for workshops, teacher training and assessments. I salute you all.

I have been involved as a volunteer for many, many years. My daughters were synchronized swimmers during their school years and both my husband and I volunteered in several capacities with the club, such as participating in fundraisers (casinos and bingos), chaperoning at swim meets, and serving on that board. It has always been important to me to take the opportunity to offer support as a volunteer within the context of my current situation.

So that leads me to this one-year term as your board president.

I look forward to working with the great group of people who make up this year's board, some returning and some new members. Being on the board is an opportunity to learn new skills as well as develop relationships with fellow yogis from across the country.

I look forward to a rewarding year and I encourage everyone to consider joining the board or helping on one of the several committees that support your organization as it grows and evolves over the next year.

Looking forward.

Sincerely,

Frema Bram
President
IYAC/ACYI

Prompted by Moira Nicholson's story about bringing yoga to the Alberta high school curriculum (in this newsletter) I was browsing around the net on the topic of Iyengar yoga and kids. Thanks to the wonders of YouTube, I came across this lovely little video of a 10-minute 'performance' put on by some kids at Studio Yoga Dipika in Azumino, Nagano Prefecture, Japan. The video was posted by their teacher, Elena Kogure. I've included a few screen shots here:

- The Invocation to Patanjali
- A 'rolling' Urdhva Dhanurasana, where the youngster on the right crawls under the arch formed by the others then gets into the asana forming another arch. They repeat until they run out of mat!

Their form is by no means perfect, but they know the names of the asanas and get into them promptly and without instruction (this is a 'performance' and not a class).

I've included the YouTube coordinates which you can copy and paste into your browser.
